Retail Gaming: Revenue Source vs. Casino Cannibal

Retail gaming – i.e., the operation of a limited number of electronic gaming devices (typically 5-10) in liquor-licensed establishments – is operational in seven states. The most recent entrant, Illinois, has seen its retail gaming program surpass $1 billion in annual gross gaming revenue less than four years after launch. Other states are looking to join in. But at what cost to casino revenues – and thus future investment and employment in casinos? Experts on both sides of this fast-emerging issue weigh the pros and cons.

10:00 a.m. – 11:15 a.m. Panel Discussion
The New Frontier: Emerging Forms of Gambling

Legislators, regulators, operators and consumers are facing a fast-growing array of gaming choices, from daily fantasy sports to skill-based machines to virtual reality gaming. But determining what is already legal within a state's framework – and how to regulate it – can be tricky. Even determining when an activity is simply "gaming" vs. "gambling" is open to legal debate when considering the traditional elements of prize, chance and consideration. Gaming attorneys and regulators provide their insights based on state law, court decisions and legal opinion.

11:15 a.m. – 12:15 p.m. Executive Committee and Legislator Roundtable

12:45 p.m. Facility Tour; details TBA

9:00 a.m. – 10:30 a.m. General Session
Sports Betting: The Momentum Builds

The commissioners of the Major League Baseball, Major League Soccer and the National Basketball Association have warmed to notion of legalized sports betting. The American Gaming Association is vigorously lobbying for legalization, arguing that it would bring a predominantly illegal activity into a regulated, taxable environment. If approved at the federal level, would states have to opt in or opt out? Do states seeking legalization before such approval stand a chance in their various legal efforts to overturn the 1992 Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act? What are the legal and economic ramifications?
