Maura Healey

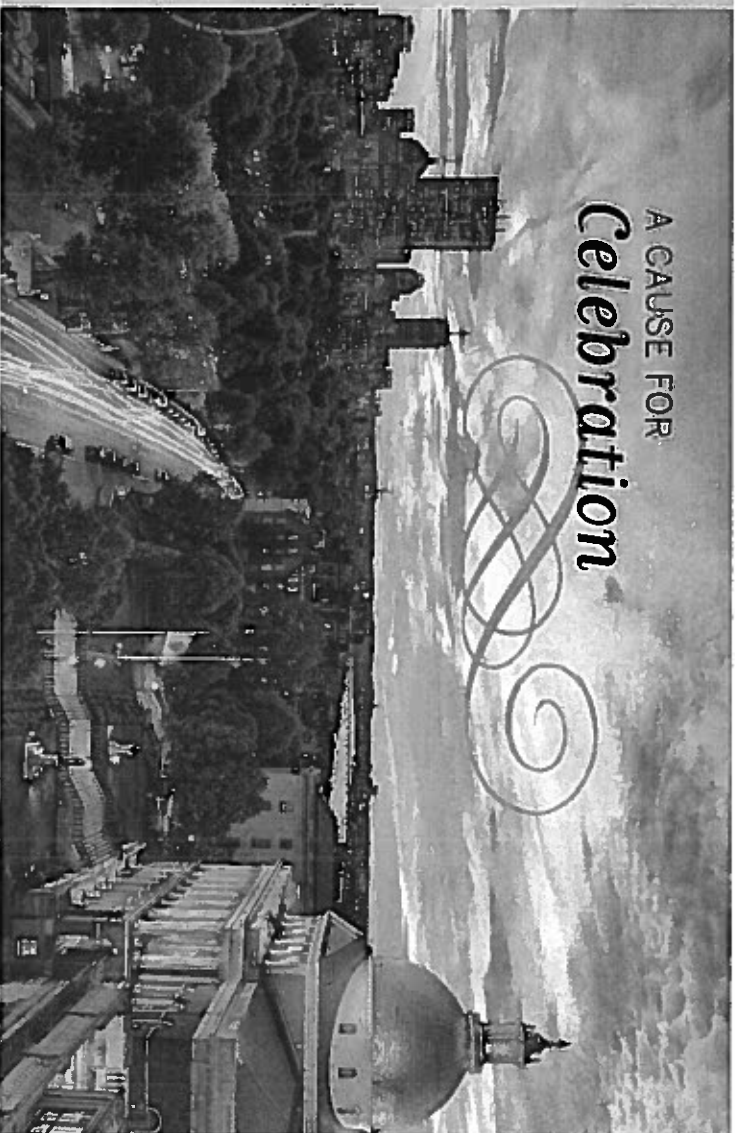

Since January 2015, Maura Healey has served as the Attorney General of Massachusetts, leading the fight for fairness and equality under the law. Since assuming office, Healey has focused on expanding economic opportunity, tackling student loan debt, and ensuring fair treatment for workers and a level playing field for businesses. Healey has also been an effective and outspoken champion for civil rights and accountable government. Before her election, Maura was a partner at WilmerHale and a Special Assistant District Attorney in Middlesex County. She is a graduate of Harvard College and Northeastern University School of Law.

Common Cause

Founded in 1970 and led for many years by Archibald Cox, Common Cause is today a non-partisan organization with more than a million supporters, offices in 35 states and Washington, D.C., and a shared dedication to upholding the core values of American democracy. Common Cause works to facilitate open, honest, and accountable government that serves the public interest; promote equal rights, opportunity, and representation for all; and empower all people to make their voices heard in the political process.
