Saudi Arabia's New Outlook on the Middle East	2:45 PM - 4:00 PM
Saudi Arabia's vast oil reserves have positioned the kingdom as the most important country in the global energy market. Its oil wealth has enabled the religiously conservative kingdom to resist internal changes for many decades. In a chaotic Middle East and with lower oil prices, however, many Saudis are questioning old assumptions about policy and politics. What's really going on inside Saudi Arabia? Will a new generation in the royal family make the kingdom more open to outsiders? How does succession to the throne work? What role does the young, but powerful, Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman play? What are the objectives of Saudi Arabia's foreign policy, and what kind of quiet relations does Riyadh have with Israel?
In these special sessions, you will use a radio and headphones, provided by AIAPAC, to listen to the speaker(s) live on stage. You are welcome to bring your own headphones to use with the radio instead of using the ones that AIAPAC will provide.
Speaker: Dr. Lotfi Pishin Boghadi, Mr. Karen Young, Dr. Colin Wesson (Moderator)
