Senator Moore:

The Council of State Governments has worked for over 80 years to advance excellence in state government. A cornerstone of this mission is promoting effective state-federal cooperation. To that end, we are honored to have you serve as a member of the CSG Federalism Task Force, charged with exploring options for improving the state-federal relationship. This new two-year effort is not aimed at advancing a specific policy agenda, but instead seeks to better understand the respective state and federal roles in our shared federalism model and investigate ways in which the state-federal relationship may be enhanced.

After our successful Federalism Forum during CSG's 2013 National Conference in Kansas City last month, the next step is to travel to Washington, DC to work directly with our leaders in the federal government. We have scheduled this important meeting for November 12-13, 2013 and my staff is in the process of organizing a valuable program to foster engagement with our federal counterparts. You will find a preliminary agenda attached.

CSG is pleased to cover your travel and lodging expenses associated with this meeting.
